COLLEGE MAGAZINE SPRING 2003

Memories

Memories... Are Made of This!

Berea College, along with the surrounding Appalachian region, is constantly changing. Those who drive through the winding mountain roads see new stores, homes, and businesses that have sprung out of the rocky heights and hollows. In Berea, both on and off campus, new and refurbished buildings, restaurants, businesses and shops have served students, faculty, and the community throughout the years. Those visiting campus today may not recognize some buildings, may raise a few eyebrows at students' fashion sense, and think that this Berea, and college life itself, is not what they remember.

But as they travel through town, and walk through campus, they start to spy familiar and dear spots--and they start to remember. Gathering at the millstone. Heading to the Pinnacles for Mountain Day. Eating one more meal at Food Service. The numerous happy brides and grooms coming out of Danforth Chapel during graduation weekend. Berea's social traditions--a soda at Porter Moore's, a Star Wars marathon at Phelps Stokes, a late night snack at PapaLeno's. Although much has changed, there is a constant thread running through the experiences of all Bereans. Current students carry on the legacy and values of their predecessors--a commitment to academic excellence, hard work, and service to their communities, but also to friendship, leadership, athletics, and the occasional crazy prank.

And even if you didn't attend Berea, I believe you can see yourself in these pages, because those years we spent in the transition to adulthood were special for all of us. Maybe you didn't gather in the same places or study in the same library, but we all shared a similar experience--wherever and whenever we faced the challenge of growing up and finding our place in the world.

This special issue of the Berea College Magazine celebrates these memories and reminds us that the work of the College today will make the memories of new generations of students. As we renovate our facilities, look for new ways to live more sustainably and reduce our use of natural resources, continue our commitment to interracial education, and work with our students and communities to serve the Appalachian region, we recognize that these traditions have their roots in Berea's history of learning, labor, plain living, and service to the mountains.

As Berea College looks towards its 150th anniversary in 2005, we celebrate the traditions of learning, labor and service that still stand at the core of the College. At the same time, every anniversary deserves a party. We hope you enjoy this scrapbook celebration of fun times, good friends, and really bad hairdos!

Even though athletics at Berea were sponsored more for physical fitness than competition, we fielded some pretty outstanding teams. In the '30s, Berea's men's track team won the state championship five times, and our '34 basketball team went to the finals of the Southern Intercollegiate Athletics Association tournament.

Young ladies learned to play basketball "dressed in black, knee-length bloomers" a uniform approved by the Cabinet "only after the most careful deliberation." The girls donned their uniform at Ladies Hall (Fairchild) and rushed across campus bundled in coats "to foil the prying eyes of the men."

These days, marriage is strictly regulated! Any enrolled student who marries without permission of the President and Dean of Men or Dean of Women is suspended for one year. Even so, some of the nicest weddings in Berea are held in the new Danforth Chapel, dedicated in May 1938. On June 7, the first marriage took place there when Westervelt Shop instructor Rude Osolnik and Daphne Francis, '38 were married by President William J. Hutchins. On July 7, 1939, Dean W. Colvard and Martha E. Lampkin (pictured above) were married by Dr. Gordon Ross.

Mountain Day

The Hangout, located in a pair of joined white frame buildings that stood behind Boone Tavern (where present Boone Tavern parking is), opened in 1939 and was a popular spot for breakfast parties on Sunday mornings. Before the Alumni Building, this was the campus restaurant and recreation center. "In the days before social dancing was allowed in the open, a private breakfast party and a portable phonograph were looked upon as a delightful combination."

I do enjoy making things in Westervelt shop. Of course, it's also one of the few places where boys and girls can meet—and plenty have met here!

Thank goodness for the Navy! So many students have joined the military since 1942 the girls have been pretty lonesome—only 9 men out of 105 in the class of '44. Since hundreds of sailors have been training here, we have social dances and a lot more things to do.

Larry Cornett, '71 says he and his buddies learned that it was tradition for Dana I guys to raid the college's Poultry Farm. They developed a strategy, assigned positions, and drew up a map. At about 10 p.m. everyone assumed their position at the coops. Two of the group went in to collect the eggs. You could hear the chickens cackling like crazy, and the guys came out covered in feathers. Others waited outside with gym bags to take the eggs, which they fried up for the freshest egg sandwiches ever.

Thanks for the Memories!

We've all laughed and played, studied and dreamed, at Berea and all over the world. As the traditions and needs of the Appalachian region and Berea's students have changed, the College has changed as well, and recognizes there is still work to be done. But some things never change. Today's Berea continues to pursue the core values of outstanding academics, hard work, and serving our communities the best way we can—by extending Berea's legacy of preparing service-oriented leaders who make a difference in Appalachia and around the world. Whether you knew Berea best in the '50s, the '70s or now in the 21st century, we hope you have enjoyed this look back at the lighter side of life at Berea College through the years.

Shared Name, Shared Vision: Berea College's New Dimitrie Berea Gallery Opens

On February 21, Berea College dedicated the new Dimitrie Berea Gallery, named after the Romanian born post-Impressionist painter. The gallery and premier exhibit of Berea's works was made possible, in part, by a generous gift from Princess Alice Gurielli Berea Terres, who was present for the ceremony. After reading about Berea College in a New York Times article in September 1998, Princess Alice knew that the College and her late husband shared more than a name, but a philosophy. She contacted the College about donating his work, which led to construction of the new art space. A landscape painter, portraitist, and illustrator, Dimitrie Berea's works are part of major museums, state collections, and private collections. Berea College now possesses the world's largest number of images by Dimitrie Berea and is the repository of his papers and records.

Construction of the new 4,700 square foot building, which contains the gallery and connects the existing Rogers and Traylor Art Buildings, began in 2002. In addition to the larger gallery space, which features Dimitrie Berea's works, the new building also houses a "Romanian Room" which will permanently display papers and artifacts relating to Dimitrie Berea and his native country. In addition to the exhibition space for Dimitrie Berea's art, the new building contains 1,200 square feet of secure art collection storage. Old spaces were also renovated to provide a new student gallery, dedicated to former Berea art professor Dorothy Tredennick, a multi-media class room, a 3-D design space, exhibition prep spaces and a computer graphics studio.

Be sure to check the next issue of the Berea College Magazine (Summer 2003) for a more in-depth look at this fascinating story.

Berea Celebrates African-American Legacy

"The obligation of such a legacy (as Berea's) is to continue to earn it," said Dr. David Porter, Berea's academic vice president and provost, as he introduced diversity educator John Gray to a packed house on February 20 for the Carter G. Woodson Memorial Convocation in Phelps Stokes Chapel.

John Gray

Gray, who has appeared in numerous national media such as NPR's "All Things Considered" and ABC's "Nightline," presented "Breaking the Silence," a psychodrama which vividly demonstrates stereotyping and prejudice in action, examines the impact of stereotyping, and shows how to confront discrimination by breaking the "silence" at both the personal and organizational levels.

The convocation was part of February's Carter G. Woodson Celebration Month, which brought Berea's campus together to celebrate the legacy of Dr. Woodson, a Berea alum and "Father of African-American History." Confronting our own prejudices and working through them not only was a theme for Gray, but also for the entire month. Learning opportunities included on-campus seminars, guest speakers and performers, music, theatre and art by and about African-American culture. It was made possible by the collaboration of programs and departments across campus, led by Berea's Black Cultural Center.

As Berea continues its commitment to "all peoples of the earth," collaboration is critical. "We all have different priorities, but we can work together on some common goals," explained Gray. "There's no such thing as a non-prejudiced person. But once you can identify where prejudice comes from, you can develop strategies to deal with it—not only individually, but organizationally."

Berea College Magazine Wins Regional Honor

The Berea College Magazine has been honored by the Council for Advancement and Support of Education (CASE) District III with a Special Merit Award for Improvement in Design. The District is made up of the entire southeastern United States; co-award-winners in the category included Duke, Vanderbilt, and the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill.

The Visual Design awards recognize imaginative, original approaches and professional execution of college publications. Incorporating input from several informal focus groups as well as the Alumni Executive Council, Berea College graphic designer Linda Kuhlmann created the magazine's new look in Spring 2002, adding four-color graphics and a fresh new look to make the magazine more visually appealing and reader friendly. She has also incorporated photographs of the Berea and Appalachian areas by Dr. Alan Mills, associate professor of technology and industrial arts.

"It's wonderful to be recognized for all the hard work that went into this redesign, especially since we were competing against many larger schools with more staff members and bigger budgets," says Ann Mary Quarandillo, Berea's director of publications and editor of the magazine. "And the best part is, thanks to extra work by Melvin Cooper, director of Berea College printing services, we were able to improve the magazine's look and feel without negatively affecting the budget."

The award-winning entry was displayed at the CASE District III conference in Atlanta, Ga. Feb. 23-26, and is archived at CASE International headquarters in Washington, D.C.

Mountaineers Boast Coach of the Year and All-American

In his first year as head coach at Berea College, John Mills led his team to the regular season regional title with a 17-8 record, and advanced to the championship game of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) Div. II South Independent Regional Tournament. For his efforts, Mills was named the 2003 NAIA All-South Independent Region Coach of the Year and the Kentucky Intercollegiate Athletic Conference (KIAC) Coach of the Year.

“It is very humbling when your peers pick you for any honor,” says Mills. “This award really should go to the entire basketball program.”

Forward Brandon Snowden, '03, was named an NAIA Div. II All-American (Honorable Mention). Snowden and guard Aaron Taylor, '05, were also named to the All-Region Team, the All-Tournament Team, and the All-KIAC Team. “Brandon really reached deep this season and came up big game after game,” says Mills. “And Aaron is a big reason we were as successful as we were this year.” Snowden, a Montgomery County native, joined the 1,000 points club and the 750 rebounds club this season, and averaged 12.6 points and 7.6 rebounds per game. In addition, the business major has maintained a 3.78 GPA. Taylor, a Whitley County native, averaged 16.8 points and 4 assists per game this season. Charles Marshall, '04, received All-KIAC Honorable Mention.

The Mountaineers are looking forward to next season, when they will field eight returning players, including Taylor. They will face traditional rival Cumberland College at Homecoming 2003.

Coach Mills draws up the play.

Snowden Named to U.S. International Tournament Team

From May 14th-27th, Brandon Snowden, '03, will represent the United States in the Arafura Games, an international competition held every two years in Darwin, Australia.

Recognized as a leading sporting event for athletes in the Asia-Pacific region, the Arafura Games are open to amateur athletes, and attract more than 3,100 athletes from 25 nations. Coach Mills nominated Snowden for the team, which includes players from the NCAA Divisions II and III, NAIA Divisions I and II, and junior colleges.

“It is an honor, as well as the opportunity of a lifetime, to be invited to participate in the event,” says Snowden. “I owe it all to Coach Mills for making this opportunity available to me.” For more information, see www.arafuragames.nt.gov.au.

Lady Mountaineers Score Another Winning Season

The Lady Mountaineers headed into the NAIA Div. II South Independent Regional Tournament at Bethel College (Tenn.) Feb. 27-March 1 with high hopes. A first round 95-58 victory over St. Louis Pharmacy sent them to the semi-finals, where, after an injury to starter and leading rebounder Andi Amburgey, '03, they fell to eventual tournament champion Bethel College.

Amburgey finished her career as Berea's all-time leading rebounder. Brittany Carr, '06, and Ashley Miller, '05, were both named to the 1st Team All-KIAC and the NAIA South Independent Regional Team. Carr led the KIAC in individual scoring, with an average 16.1 points per game, while Miller led in individual rebounding with 8.3 per game. Carr also broke the Berea season records for points scored (431) and field goals (189). The team finished 14-13 for their second consecutive winning season. They also broke the Berea records for most three point field goals in a game (15), most rebounds in a season, and highest rebound average per game. “We got a lot better as the season went on,” says Coach Bunky Harkleroad, '93. “Everybody on our team improved. After Christmas, (assistant coach) Frank Ray and I couldn't have asked for more.”

Schenk Is 11th in Indoor Track Nationals

Matt Schenk, '05, qualified for the 3000 meter run in the NAIA Indoor Track and Field National Championship held March 6-8 in Johnson City, Tenn. Schenk finished 2nd in his heat and 11th in the nation with a time of 8:50.27. “I was delighted to make it to the national level,” says Schenk. “The greatest feeling was being able to take Coach Mike Johnson and represent Berea College before the rest of the NAIA.”

Relay Swimmers Break School Record; Fink Repeats His Swim to Nationals

Jeremy Fink, '05, repeated his 2002 success, qualifying for the NAIA Swimming and Diving National Championships, held March 5-8 in Lawrence, Kan. The relay team of J.D. Heffernan, '03, Joe Tingle, '05, Cody Cox, '03, and Fink qualified for the 200 freestyle relay and 200 medley relay. They finished 11th in the medley, with a time of 1:46:42, establishing a Berea College record, and 11th in the freestyle with a time of 1:33.02.

Fink also qualified for the 50 and 100 meter freestyle events. He made the consolation finals in both events after swimming his season's fastest times in the preliminaries. In the final, he finished 11th in the 50 with a time of 22.40 and 10th in the 100 with a time of 49.00.
