SMART GIFTS...

INVEST IN SMART STUDENTS.

CONSIDER THE BENEFITS OF YEAR-END GIVING

As 2015 comes to a close, the remaining days provide an opportunity to make your financial resources work for you, and for a deserving student. With a little planning you can enjoy tax and other benefits while assisting Berea College with a gift prior to December 31.

LIFE INCOME GIFTS

A charitable gift annuity is a simple agreement between you and Berea. With a gift of $5,000 or more you receive fixed payments for life backed by all of Berea’s assets, as well as an income tax deduction for 2015. This is just one of the many smart ways you can invest in these lives of great promise.

Dear Berea Friends and Alumni,

Greetings from the Office of the President!

I am pleased to present the 2014-2015 President’s Report and commend it to your review. The Report contains information about our strong financial position and data pertaining to our sources of fiscal support. The report also lists the names of the Berea College Board of Trustees and national alumni leaders, all of whom lend their time, passion and professional expertise to help guide this remarkable and transformative institution. In reading these pages, I am struck anew with grateful recognition of just how many people are responsible for supporting Berea College’s Eight Great Commitments. Berea truly thrives because of this generosity, and it is good to be mindful of this truth.
Recently, Board of Trustees chair Hal Moses and I attended a national conference during which the participants, all college presidents and Board chairs, were asked to identify significant opportunities and challenges facing higher education today. Many cited “affordability” as the major challenge faced by colleges and universities, while others mentioned declining levels of student preparation, the need to adapt to new learning and teaching styles, and the increased competition for top students. Berea’s unique mission to serve students of great promise but limited economic means and our commitment to do so on a tuition-free basis is certainly an answer to the affordability challenge and continues to bring students of very high potential to study at Berea. In my opinion at least, Berea’s model can be an example for the rest of the country. Meanwhile, the faculty continue to innovate to support teaching and learning, and our “bridge-in” initiatives are resulting in rapidly increasing student success.

It is critical that this inspiring experiment continue to succeed; however, there is no crystal ball to consult and no oracle to foretell what the future will hold. As Berea’s history of responsible financial planning has shown though, there are prudent measures that can help prepare for many possibilities. Thus, as an institution, we remain committed to protecting and growing our endowment so that we will be able to continue to provide tuition for future generations of Berea students. We thank you for your partnership in the effort to ensure that continued financial success.

At the same time, I am mindful of the fact that renewing and refreshing are essential to the health of any community. New programs such as the Fresh Start wellness initiative (featured in the Summer 2015 issue of the Berea College Magazine) allow us to address the needs of our students as do the improvements to our campus infrastructure. Renovations to the education building, Knapp Hall, and to our residence halls – the recently completed Dana Hall and current work on Bingham Hall – are all part of a plan to ensure we maintain a campus ready to provide “the best education money can’t buy” for leaders in the 21st century and beyond. A project that will be well underway before the next President’s Report is the construction of new facilities for the natural science programs and nursing. These enhancements are critically needed so that Berea College can continue to offer preparation for the key careers associated with these fields. Stay tuned for communications about this project and for ways you can help with it.

In conclusion, the Bereans on campus want me to convey to you, generous friends of Berea and Bereans in other places across the country and even around the world, just how grateful we are for your continued support and interest. Truly you are a blessing to us!

Anna Skaggs, ’17

Huapei Chen joined Berea College as the new chief information officer September 1, 2015. In announcing her appointment, Berea College President Lyle Roelofs said, “Huapei brings with her a depth of leadership experience, most recently as the chief information officer at the University of Nevada, Reno.” Roelofs added that Chen will also serve on the Administrative Committee of the College. “Throughout her career, Huapei has focused on creating strong partnerships within campus communities by enabling the institutions she has served to improve and enhance their technological infrastructure.”

Chen stated that “being able to serve as the CIO is my passion, a meaningful path that allows me to enable others, especially those who are underserved, like I was years ago. It is truly my honor and privilege to be a part of the Berea community and its greater cause.”

Berea’s great aspirations inspire her. “There is a lot of potential for Berea in shaping the future of higher education and not just for our region. It also inspires and gives me a chance to make an impact in a profession to which I have devoted more than 30 years of my life.”

Calling herself “a perpetual learner,” she loves to experience the variety that the United States has to offer, with Kentucky being the tenth state in which she has lived. “In my various jobs, I have had the opportunity to partner with extraordinary teams. All these enrich my life greatly, in many ways.”

Before serving as CIO at the University of Nevada, Reno, Chen was employed as senior director of systems, services, and infrastructure at the University of Texas, Austin; director of architecture and infrastructure at the Georgia Institute of Technology; and director of information technology for the College of Engineering at the University of California, Berkeley. She earned a Bachelor of Science degree in Computer Science from Morningside College in Sioux City, Iowa, and a Master of Science in Computer Science from SUNY Albany. She also holds a Master of Business Administration in Management of Technology from the Georgia Institute of Technology.

Chen said her greatest therapeutic hobby outside of work is playing tennis. “I am a singles player so I meditate on the court and strategize on how to whack the ball as hard as I can.” She added, “However, as I get older, my body tends to not play ball with my brain!”

Finding great satisfaction in her work, Chen said, “So far I have been able to say, at the end of each day that I have truly done my best, and that Berea College is stronger and better because of these efforts. I hope to continue that.”
Though I only came to Berea College a few months ago, I have been looking for and attempting to create a place like this for much of my life.

As a first-generation graduate myself, I know the unique challenges the transition to college can pose. Back then, I needed the support only a place like Berea can provide, support that goes beyond financial assistance and encompasses the social and spiritual dimensions of life as well.

In my professional life, I have always worked to develop the financial support needed to help lift up deserving young people, so they will have even greater opportunities to reach their fullest potential, just as I did. And, yet, over the years I’ve watched far too many dreams be deferred because personal circumstances prevented individuals from investing fully in his or her own future.

Berea changes that story. Thanks to the generosity of our friends and the willingness of our alumni to pay forward the opportunities they received, each year 1,600 students are freed to build a foundation, an educational base from which to launch extraordinary lives. And because this foundation is built in a community that fosters diversity, inclusion, and service to others, they will transform more than their own lives. They will help build better, stronger communities wherever their dreams may take them.

And so, though I am new to Berea, I am honored to be working alongside all of you to make John G. Fee’s vision a reality. I have a deep appreciation for the College’s mission and an abiding respect for the hard work and sacrifice required to provide this opportunity to our students. For these reasons, I want to offer thanks to each of the persons included in this Honor Roll of Giving. Thank you for believing in our students and allowing us to believe with you.

Best Wishes,

Bernadine Douglas
Vice President for Alumni and College Relations

I give to Berea College because, through my service as a trustee, I understand the endowment only covers approximately 70 percent of the college operating budget. As a college that charges no tuition, the donations Berea College receives each year are crucial to the operating budget and the institution’s ongoing viability. Also, I know the College is thoughtful, careful and frugal with expenditures, and am comfortable my donations will not be squandered or wasted. I also give because I feel a sense of responsibility to repay Berea for the education I received, which was made possible in large part by the donations of others. Lastly, I give because my interactions with the administration, faculty, staff and students has given me a deep and profound appreciation for the mission and values of the College and I earnestly want the College to stay strong and continue its mission of educating students with great promise but little means.

As a student, I believe it is crucial to give to the Berea Fund. To know that another person invested in my future and believed Berea would pick the most deserving individuals to attend this awesome institution is enough to inspire me to invest in another Berea College student’s future. Everyone loves a great gift, so why not give the gift of a quality education to someone who may have all odds stacked against them?

Berea inspires me by showing what can be achieved when we reach out to students with the opportunity for education: a gift that lifts up individuals and their families (like my own) over many generations. Each time I return here, I am impressed by the incredible work being done.

The undergraduate education I received at Augustana College was truly transformative for me. As a teaching assistant, I not only learned that I wanted to teach, but also how to motivate others who felt discouraged. I learned who I was and what was important to me. When my father lost his job during my freshman year, I had my own kind of “Berea experience” when the Dean of Women at my alma mater offered me a no-interest loan to help with my living expenses. Though my monthly contribution to Berea is small, I contribute as a way of “paying forward” the kindness that made my own education possible.
In 2011, Washington Monthly ranked Berea the #1 liberal arts college in the nation for the quality of its education and has included the College in the top three ever since.
I support the College because without it, I would not have had the opportunities I’ve enjoyed over the years. Berea helped me realize I could compete with anyone, which was not a mindset I had earlier in life. Berea opened that door.

DR. LINDA STRONG-LEEK: AN ADVOCATE AT THE HIGHEST LEVEL

Dr. Linda Strong-Leek was appointed vice president for diversity and inclusion at Berea College July 1, 2015. Lyle Roelofs, Berea College president, said, “Linda brings impressive skills of leadership, scholarship and advocacy to a role that is new for the College.” Roelofs stated that the creation of this new position and its inclusion as part of the Administrative Committee was approved by the Board of Trustees following the recommendation of a committee which had been reviewing one of the College’s Great Commitments, which asserts “the kinship of all people” and acknowledges the need for “interracial education with a particular emphasis on understanding and equality among blacks and whites.”

“The history of Berea College as the first interracial, coeducational college in the South speaks to the radically inclusive vision of our founder, Reverend John G. Fee,” Dr. Strong-Leek said. “To affirm and continue this work, as the first vice president for diversity and inclusion, I call upon our beloved Berea community to recommit to Fee’s radical notion of inclusivity and meaningful diversity.”

Moreover, she stated that “It is important to understand that Berea College is not alone as it faces the challenging work of diversity and inclusion in these difficult and sometimes polarizing times. While Reverend Fee and his contemporaries faced angry racist mobs intent on closing down the College, today, we face the remnants of deeply entrenched racial, gender and class structures in their many forms. Headlines testify: the young white man who killed nine African-Americans as they prayed in their church in Charleston; acts of violence against LGBTQ individuals such as Lorena Escalera; the many young African-American men who have been killed by policemen and “neighborhood watchmen”; African-American women such as Rekia Boyd, who was killed in Chicago by an off-duty policemen; young African-American men who kill each other; the everyday insults aimed at Appalachian youth who feel stigmatized for speaking their dialect; undocumented individuals who live in fear of deportation and separation from family; and the many issues that those differently abled individuals face in our community.

The issues we face today are complex, and there are simply no easy answers. Today, as in Fee’s day, we have much work to do. While I know that Fee’s utopian vision has not been achieved, even at Berea College, I do believe that his work and vision call us, as Bereans, to do more to make our community diverse and inclusive.”

The responsibilities of this new position within the college administration include: oversight of the Title VII/IX office and coordinator; collaborating in hiring processes to achieve greater diversity within the workforce; and other initiatives to support diversity, inclusivity and the full realization of the interracial and coeducational aspects of the Great Commitments. Dr. Strong-Leek will also continue her responsibilities as associate vice president for academic affairs, which she assumed in 2012.

Dr. Strong-Leek originally came to Berea College in 2002 to take an appointment in women’s and gender studies and general studies. “Her work in those areas and in African and African-American Studies, in particular, provide a strong foundation for the position of vice president for diversity and inclusion,” President Roelofs continued. Before being appointed associate vice president for academic affairs, Dr. Strong-Leek was the first chair of Division VI, the academic division which includes programs in African and African-American studies, Appalachian studies, education studies, peace and social justice studies, and women’s and gender studies. She also served as the Program Chair for African and African-American studies. Prior to joining the faculty at Berea College, Dr. Strong-Leek taught at Florida International University in Miami. She has published articles on African writers, including Chinua Achebe, Flora Nwapa and Ngũgĩ wa Thiong’o. She is the author of Excising the Spirit: A Literary Analysis of Female Circumcision (2009). Her current research project, which is being considered for publication by the University of Mississippi Press, explores the Mami Wata figure in the novels of contemporary Caribbean women writers. She was a Fulbright Scholar at the University of Zimbabwe, and participated in an NEH seminar at the University of South Carolina focused on African-American history. She attended the HERS Bryn Mawr Seminar in 2012, and has participated in other leadership development experiences.
The Berea College Alumni Association enjoys hearing from Bereans from all over the U.S. and the world. The “Class Notes” section of Berea College Magazine (BCM) reports verifiable news that has been sent to the Association by alumni. BCM reports the news you wish to share with your alumni friends and associates. “Class Notes” reports careers, weddings, retirements, births and other items of importance to our alumni. Please include your class year and name used while attending Berea. Notes may be edited for style and length. Please note that our printing deadlines may delay the appearance of your class news. While we will make every effort to put your information into the next issue of BCM, some delays due to printing schedule may occur. We appreciate your understanding.
